Experience the Passive House yourself – come in and find out
 6th International Passive House Days on November 6, 7 and 8, 2009
 More than 650 Passive Houses opened Europe-wide

The Passive House comes of age - innovative architecture - mature technology - Passive Houses have been lived-in and well-proven for 18 years!

Germany, November 3, 2009 From November 6 to 8, 2009 in countries all around Europe – like Germany, Austria, Switzerland, Luxemburg, Italy, Poland, Czech Republic, France, Slovakia, Belgium, the Netherlands, Sweden, Ireland, Romania, Croatia and Hungary, Passive House residents open their homes to you. You can come by, get a tour of the house and have your questions answered by people who can talk from their very own experience. Already today, you will get to know the house of the future. At the International Passive House Days, anyone can learn more about the comfort in a Passive House. While the majority of open houses will be private dwellings, there will also be some office buildings, schools and kindergartens. The buildings were designed by different architects using different construction methods.

Passive Houses offer unique comfort of living. They keep so warm, you barely need heating at all. Today, you can apply the Passive House concept to any new and old building. The investment into a Passive House starts paying off from the very first day.

The “International Passive House Days” is an event by the “Informations-Gemeinschaft Passivhaus Deutschland” (IG Passivhaus) several European Passive House Communities, the EU Project PASS-NET and further partners abroad.

You can find participating Passive House projects at www.passivhausprojekte.de. Information on Passive Houses and activities in further countries not listed in our database is provided by www.ig-passivhaus.de / Tag des Passivhauses / International PASSIVE HOUSE days.
